National AAU Marathon Championships

What marathon swim competition lacks as a spectator sport it more than makes up for in post-race story-telling. Everyone is fascinated by the dramatic tales of just what happened, and the July 22 AAU Marathon National Championship was no exception. The 10-mile race from the Huntington Beach Pier to the Seal Beach Pier in Southern California was a thriller. It was also the first AAU-sanctioned distance championship held in salt water, a well-organized and safe race. All entrants were accompanied by a paddler on a surfboard and the entire "fleet" of swimmers and paddlers was patrolled by Coast Guard vessels.

Dawn on July 22 brought the first "south swell" of the summer-waves up to eight feet high! Nineteen starters were battered by the heavy surf and strong currents, which impaired visibility and carried the swimmers a quarter mile down the beach from where their paddler escorts were waiting. A full six minutes after the start San Francisco Olympic Club swimmer Mike Garibaldi finally found himself just outside the break line, a pair of broken goggles in hand. He watched his chief competitors in the Masters division swim away-first Dave Scott of the Davis Aquatic Masters team in Northern California, then Bill Damm of Pasadena's Cal Tech Masters. Tough ocean competitor Bill Randall, who was first through the surf line, seemed to be swimming in first position and John York was up there, too. After getting a new pair of goggles from his paddler, Garibaldi took off.

All five top competitors were within three hundred yards of each other for the first hour of the race when Dave Scott found the chilly 60° water taking its toll and decided to quit. Before swimming to shore he stopped to urge his friend and sometimes rival, Mike Garibaldi, to "go for it." Garibaldi turned it on, pulling up even with Bill Damm at about two hours into the race. To no avail. Damm soon moved away and continued to gain easily on the leaders, Bill Randall and John York. He passed York (eventual third-place finisher, 3:26:45) at about two and one-half hours and pulled around the Seal Beach Pier to finish strongly in 3:17:27, second overall to Randall's winning time of 3:09:11. Garibaldi was fourth in a time of 3:29:13 and Suzanne Heim was first woman finisher, fifth overall, in 3:33:09.

The drama, however, was not confined to the race among the frontrunners. Tom Clardy, a 34-year-old swimmer who lost a leg after a 1974 automobile accident, was the last—but the happiest—finisher. He swam for nearly seven hours fighting the cold and constantly worsening conditions, eventually emerging from the water on crutches to an ovation from hundreds of waiting spectators on the beach.
