For at least 10 years, nobody has had to suffer headaches and heartaches trying to keep hair dry while getting bodies wet. But if Californians have their way, we will all snap rubber on our heads again and call it glamor.

Back-Paddling

The Days of the Rubber Helmet Return

By NICKIE McWHIRTER

Bathing caps are back. Those rubbery, skull-hugging caps once required by pool supervisors are in again in California, and California is where all idiocies begin, if they don't begin in New York.

It's because people on both coasts soak their brains in polluted water and then wander around breathing automobile exhaust.

Anyway, bathing caps are back, and I consider this bad news.

BACK IN NEOLITHIC times, I purchased and used every bathing cap ever devised by the tortured minds of swimsuit designer Rose Marie Reid and her cronies. I did this because water was hair poison.

I spent one hour every night twisting limp brown hair into precisely 75 perfect pin curls so that every day I could brush them out and look sort of like Susan Hayward, started.

This was definitely a temperamental hairstyle. Humidity above Death Valley levels caused it to sag. I walked on the leeward side of drinking fountains.

A DAY AT THE POOL or beach required a tousted-tresses life-support system of awesome proportions. I was perfectly willing to spend a month's pay and as much energy as necessary to keep a dry head along with a wet body, and heaven knows, I tried.

There were these caps with four rows of suction cups around the edge and some with inner flaps and rubber baffles and terry-cloth liners, and not one of them worked at all. Instead, they all let your hair get wet all around your face and at the nape of your neck.

They squashed all the dry Susan Hayward curls on the top of your head into a miniature hay ball and they gave you a headache. Caps came in assorted colors, with and without chin straps. If you couldn't find yours, you couldn't go in the pool.

THE LIFEGUARDS were in cahoots with Rose Marie Reid. You could go in the lake or ocean without one, but nobody except trash and little kids did that.

There are lots of things for which to thank hippie weirdo freaks (that's what they were called in the 1960s). One of the things is that they said bathing caps are silly, and they were correct. Even Republicans could see it. So, for at least 10 years nobody has had to suffer headaches and heartaches trying to keep hair dry while getting bodies wet.

All of this social progress is about to be undone by Californians, however. If they have their way, we will all snap rubber on our heads again and call it glamor.

IN MY DETERMINATION to resist, and to start a counter-movement to ban baggies for noggins, I turned for helpful hints to the hairdressers of America.

Mostly I turned to hairdressers in New York because most of the hairdressers of America try to solve everything by shearing your head and frizzing what the shears miss. I've tried that. I'm looking for something new.

Gerard Bollei who has a salon in the Galleria on 57th Street in New York, has devised a braiding process he calls twilling. This looks like what my mother used to call French braids. They progress upward from several starting points on the nape of the neck. The loose ends are all twisted together into a top-knot and secured with pins.

IT ALL LOOKS pretty sloppy, but Bollei says you can twill your hair on Friday and forget it until Sunday. It doesn't matter if it's wet and droopy and sloppy. Just explain it has been twilled, and you are tres chic.

Free-lance stylist Maura Hopson agrees that the last thing acceptable in beach and pool coiffure is perfect order. He has devised a style called "loose" and "whimsical."

He braids wet hair into a single tail, originating at the crown. Then he winds this thing into a lump, pins it and ties a shoe lace around it. The shoelace is color-coordinated with the swim suit.

Garren deFazio of New York's Plaza Hotel, just sort of twists hunks of wet hair and then pins the hunks to the crown and decorates here and there with cheap plastic barrettes. This is definitely acceptable. There is no order, perfect or otherwise.

FINALLY, WE might consider another Hopson look. "Wet hair is twisted into an asymmetrical, surf's-up roll on one side of the head and secured with several faux tortoise pins. Then a bit of black tulle is wrapped at an angle around the head, allowing the wave at the forehead to settle over it."

You got that? What you do is pin all the wet hair up, wrap a hunk of what looks like the veil from your grandmother's bonnet around your forehead like a sweat band, and wait for the photographers from Women's Wear.

I don't know if I can afford twilling or if I can manage a surf's-up roll on one side of my head. If that's what it takes to fight the bathing cap crowd, however, I'll try it. I do have a shoelace. It's white. Should go with everything.

Joan and Louise Runkel would be perfect for that commercial — you know, can you tell which is the mother.

After they cleaned up in the Masters Mid-Winter Swimming championship over the weekend at Berkley High, somebody said they were sisters.

"They may look like sisters, but they're daughter and mother... and they are both good," said Jean Garbus, a competitor in the 40-to-44 age group.

Louise, the mother, won four races in the 55-59 age group.

"We train together and I'd like to think it keeps me young, but it's fun anyway," Louise said.

Joan, 26, won four races in the 25-29 class and then talked about her mother.

"She has acquired amazing stamina... she'll swim a fast mile, follow it with sprints and still get dinner ready in a breeze," Joan said.

Joan swept four freestyle races, winning the 50-yard in 26.9, the 100 in 1:00.29, the 200 in 2:21.93 and the 500 in 6:21.

Louise won the 50-yard breaststroke in 54.9, the 50 freestyle in 26.9, the 100 freestyle in 1:00.20 and the 200 freestyle in 2:21.9.

Wally Dobler, onetime Michigan State star, celebrated his 45th birthday by setting four state records in the 45-49 class in which he was racing for the first time. Dobler won the 50-yard backstroke in 30.24, the 50 freestyle in 24.6, the 100 backstroke in 1:08.9 and the 50 butterfly in 26.9.

Bob Heritier, who set a Masters record of 53.2 for the 100-yard freestyle in the 50-54 age group last week in Cleveland, won the men's Mid-Winter title in his class.

Life Begins at 30 For East Aurora's Mann

By TOM GAFFNEY

Tom Mann's success story just doesn't make sense.

Here's a guy who is now one of the outstanding swimmers in his age category in the nation. The East Aurora resident competes against former college and Olympic stars like Don Schollander and John Kinsella without being intimidated, awed or outclassed.

He dives into the water at the same time as former big-name swimmers and often HE is the one staring pensively skyward to see if his triumphant time set a record of some kind.

Many of those who follow him had tread water before they had had their first Big Mac. Swimming has been a career to them.

SO WHO IS THIS TOM MANN, a relative swim neophyte, in their midst?

Four years ago, at age 26, the Ingham Central English teacher weighed more than any two airline stewardesses you could find. He juggled around about 250 pounds on a 5-10 frame and was much more concerned with finding an available taco stand than the nearest 50 meters of water.

He was coaching swimming then but he got wet only by tripping over the starting block and falling headlong into the pool.

And his early aquatic exploits did not portend later success. He did not start swimming until age 13 and then only occasionally. At West Seneca High School, he gathered some first place finishers in dual meets but his best performance in the sectionals was a fifth in the 200 individual medley as a senior in 1967. Then in college, his time was spent chasing now-wife Maryanne and not somebody in the next lane.

With that background, how is it possible that he is one of the nation's most proficient members of the AAU Masters (over-25) Swimming Program? Ask the Mann himself.

"I'm a later bloomer, I guess," he surmised. "I was always a good swimmer, maybe not a spectacular one, but a good one. Four years ago, I got real heavy and was sitting around not doing much with my time. Then I read about the Masters program and started to give it a thought or two."

"I was coaching the West Seneca swim team then and we had a trip to Canton, Ohio to a meet. There, I saw an 82-year-old guy swim four lengths of the pool (100 yards) in a minute-and-a-half. That got me interested. A few weeks later, after some practice, I entered a Masters meet in Canton and swam the 50 butterfly. I placed dead last, but I knew I couldn't do it."

The masters program itself was started 10 years ago by Ransom Arthur of Texas and consists of a series of monthly meets held all over the United States and Canada. For the sake of competition, there are numerous age categories, starting with 25-29 and increasing in increments of five years all the way up to 80-and-over.

In 1975, MANN FORMALLY joined the program and became a member of the Buffalo Masters Swim Team, which works out at the Expressway YMCA. He took the retraining process slowly by practicing only twice a week with 1,000 yards each time. And rather than hurry himself into the longer races, he entered only the 50-yard events.

He maintained that pace for two years, with little success in racing but a lot in "smarts."

"It was tough to get going again. It was like in high school, I would get butterflies before the races and everything," said Mann, who holds bachelor's and master's degrees in English Education from Buffalo State College.

"But I wanted to start slowly and build up my endurance. And I do think I got a lot smarter about racing as I got a little older. When I was younger I just jumped in the water and swam as fast as I could."

"I learned to pace myself in those first few years back," he added.

In 1977, MANN INCREASED his practice and meet schedule and had his first genuine Masters success at the International Marathon meet at Chicago's Lakefront Festival with a 20th place finish over 10 miles.

That whet his appetite for further achievement and the hard work continued.

In the 1978 season, it paid off.

At the Senior Age Group World Masters Aquatic Games in Toronto, which attracted 3,000 swimmers from the United States, Canada, Germany and Australia among others, Mann registered a first in the 1,500 freestyle, a second in the 400 freestyle and a ninth in the 30 butterfly in his 25-29 age grouping. His time of 19:36 in the longest event was one of the best in the world for his age category.

ECSTASY SET IN.

"I felt so good I couldn't believe it. Those races had some of the best competition in the world. But I knew I could go faster if I worked harder," said Mann, who lives on Eastwood Road in East Aurora with wife Maryanne and children Tom Jr., 9, Toby, 6, Rachel, 4, and Peter, seven months.

Later in 1978, in the United States National Masters Meet at Brown University in Providence, R. I., Mann garnered thirds in the 400 meter and 1,500 meter freestyles and a ninth in the 200 meter individual medley. Those efforts established him sixth in the world in the 1,500 meters and ninth in the 400, according to Swim Master magazine, the bible for "geriatric" swimmers.

THAT MOMENTUM HAS CARRIED over to this year, despite a move up to the 30-34 age group. In the Canton Nationals in Oakville, Ont. earlier this summer, Mann set two age group national records — 4:47.8 in the 400 meter free and 2:34.9 in the 200 meter IM.

He is now looking toward the U.S. Nationals Aug. 23-26 in Dearborn, Mich.

A shot at another national title is just one of the reasons he enjoys swimming.

"I like the competition, but I have a lot of fun at the meets. The health aspects of swimming helps. I just couldn't get into running. I like the fact that you are cool in the water. My heartbeat is down to 45 beats a minute and I feel good. Swimming has done a lot for me."

Indeed, swimming HAS done a lot for Tom Mann. But his own hard work has produced the success story.

Swim coach James "Doc" Counsilman, 58, is preparing to swim the English Channel in the Indiana University pool. He is scheduled to make his channel-crossing attempt Sept. 28.

Why Channel swim? Challenge, adventure

James E. (Doc) Counsilman has been swimming coach at Indiana University for 22 years. He coached the United States men's team for the 1964 Olympics.

By JAMES E. COUNSILMAN
© New York Times News Service

A little over a year ago I began training to swim the English Channel this September. I will be 58 years old then.

My friends thought I had lost my mind; my wife, though not fearful for my sanity, was somewhat apprehensive. The question I was asked over and over was this:

Why?

When a student reporter at Indiana recently asked me this question, I said, "First let me ask you a question. What are your plans for this summer?" He replied that he was going to bag groceries in a supermarket. I didn't have to say more; he understood my point.

A challenge and an element of adventure are welcome whether you are 20 or 58 and preparing to swim the Channel has it all over bagging groceries especially when you have a choice.

But why did I decide to swim the Channel at 58? Perhaps the answer to it may even evade me.

S Sports

The Journal-Gazette—Sun., July 1, 1979

It isn't for the publicity. When I began planning my swim, I had no idea of the interest that would develop. Most of the almost 300 people who have made the swim have received little or no publicity. They have been greeted by a few close friends at the completion of their swim. Despite this lack of attention, the Channel has always been the supreme challenge to swimmers: a test of ability, endurance, luck and even bravery. It is this challenge that appeals to about 100 swimmers a year who are willing to spend time, effort and money to try it.

One fact that contributes to my interest is that, if I succeed, I will be the oldest person ever to swim the Channel.

Dr. Ned Barne, who swam it in 1961 at the age of 58, has that record. I refuse to accept the idea that a person of my age who takes care of himself and keeps fit through a vigorous exercise program has little to look forward to except retirement.

In the last few decades we have begun to realize that the physical potential of young adults far exceeds our previous expectations. This has been proved by the world records that are broken with regularity in track and swimming. I think we have also underestimated the physical potential that middle-aged and older persons have available in their bodies, if they treat them properly.

I also believe that, if I train properly, I have the potential in my 58-year-old body to stand the 12 to 16 hours of sustained swimming effort in water 58 to 61 degrees Fahrenheit.

I further believe that there are many people even older than I, who are better equipped physiologically to swim the Channel than I am.

If you are over 58, I hope you will wait until next year so I can hold the oldest Channel swimmer record for a while.

"Am I making it clear that I don't think I'm a superman?" I do think I have at least three things going for me.

First, I am training hard — presently swimming 7½ miles a day. Prior to that time I also kept physically fit by training moderately hard.

Second, I am a very goal-oriented person for whom the swim has long been a goal. I have a feeling I will be psychologically ready, and won't do as one Channel swimmer did a few years ago. He trained hard for a couple of years, made the arrangements and even went to England weeks early to train at the Channel before his attempt. The great day came and he started swimming toward France. After swimming only one hour, he got out of the water and climbed aboard the boat, saying that he suddenly had lost the desire to swim the Channel and it no longer meant anything to him.

On the other hand there was the young girl who was attempting to cross the swim when the ocean got rough. She was having a tough time with the rough and cold water, when her trainer shouted to her from the boat that he thought she should give up and get out of the water. She shouted back, "I'm doing the swimming and I'll decide when to get out." She made it.

YOUR RATE OF IMPROVEMENT (reprint from DC Masters Wave Maker) Many of us who never did much competitive swimming before the Masters program probably have not reached our peak, at least for whatever age group we are in. The only way to really find out how good we are or can be is to join an intensive coaching situation such as John Flanagan runs for masters swimmers year in and year out. By doing 3000 or more yards a day with stroke clinics and time trials, one can probably reach one's full potential. Like many less-than-fully dedicated masters swimmer, I usually put in 1250 to 1750 yards a day, 4 to 6 days a week, with no coaching or systematic training program. The advantage of a low pressure approach to training is that one can improve rather gradually rather than improving all at once. It seems to me that if one reaches his or her peak right now, age can only bring about a deterioration in the times. By improving rather slowly, one never reaches a peak of which he is capable, but the times can improve gradually despite the advance in age. Thus, despite being in the masters' program for 8 years, I achieved lifetime 'bests' in several events last year. It seems to me that those former champions who gained fame in their youth have the hardest psychological barriers to overcome, since they can rarely attain the times they did years ago. Undoubtedly, their 'deterioration' with age is a depressing factor. Some former greats do, however, continue to swim because they realize all the other benefits of this type of exercise. We all know of others who have swum for awhile and then have dropped out. Perhaps these former swimmers could make it more interesting for themselves by trying different strokes, if they were limited before to one or two strokes. This way, they could watch their times drop as they mastered new techniques. Hard, dedicated training brings its satisfactions in the form of better health and lowered times, but one must beware of the possibility of 'burning out'. This may sound like a plea for mediocrity, but actually it is only a rationalization of my own inherent laziness.....

That's ankles relaxed!), goggles cloudy and fleshy noseclips in place, we reflect upon our fellow citizens and their necrotic cardiovascular systems and rusting hips and slipped disks and desiccated lungs, their inertia and inability to arise above the world they live in and push themselves to the limits of their capacity and achieve, achieve the PR's, the RB 6's, the 100's on the 1:30 (We do that in Lane 5? Shhh!), desponding sets, the White Moment of being borne aloft to that transcendental peak of beatification, help us, dear Lord, we beseech thee as we cruise in our lane, pondering the cold-lard desolation of the non-swimmer, to be big about it. - Borrowed from Tom Wolfe.....

FROM THE NAUTILUS AQUATIC CLUB NEWSLETTER - The Washington Post flatly described it as "Another one of those puzzling minor lies from Jimmy Carter." The lie was that "After only three months of jogging, he (Carter) says his pulse rate has dropped from 60 to 40. As experienced runners know" -- the Post continued -- "your pulse might decline 10 points--but not more--after five years of steady jogging." We don't know whether swimmers are more to be trusted than joggers--or presidents. But we do know that during a half-century in and around pools we've never heard a swimmer make the preposterous claim that after only three months of swimming his pulse rate plunged 20 points!.....

A FINAL COMMENT - Each day you swim try to enjoy the feeling of strength and power in your body, as you become fitter and move more efficiently through the water. Be happy, that you are able to workout and remember decreased heart rate, lower blood pressure, lower serum cholesterol, etc.
